Teaching Performance Assessment

Your Guide to a Good TPA

If you're a student in the teaching program at Eastern Washington University you will need to complete the TPA before receiving your teaching credentials. The TPA is a long and difficult process, but Eastern Washington University wants you to succeed.

The TPA is a new teaching assessment tool to be implemented at Eastern Washington University in 2012. Originally started in California, the TPA has been so successful at helping to make better teachers that 20 other states have decided to use the TPA.

The TPA is composed of four tasks and one video lesson that students must complete in order to receive their teaching credentials. Get tips, resources, and examples on how to make a good TPA with a website that Eastern Washington University put together specifically for you!
